For Unto Us A Child Is Born

At no time during the year is the thought of child uppermost in the minds of all Christians than at Christmas, when the world celebrates the Nativity of Mary's Child.

What is the child's conception of Christmas? It is a safe assumption children up to a certain age will tell you quick as a wink, and with a heart-melting gleam in their eye, it means Santa and presents! (The first one who unhitches a reindeer is a stinker!) With a little prompting most children of reason can explain the story of the baby Jesus and that Christmas is Jesus' birthday.

Christmas means a threefold birth that reaches into the soul of every member of the human race. It is the birth of God into the world . . . it is the day of potential spiritual birth for all men.

The oldest child, a girl, 10, no longer believes in Santa Claus. Girls, they say, are smarter. The next youngster in the family, a boy, 8, is teetering between make believe and reality. The three littlest angels, six, three and two, are firmly enthralled by Jolly Old St. Nick, each in his or her own way. And their illusion should not be denied them.

As our ancestors celebrated The Mass of Christ centuries ago, Christmas was a time of solemn rejoicing and deep religious dedication. We revere still the real meaning of the season even though we have succumbed to the charm of additional festive Yuletide demonstrations.

What joy and anticipation for even the smallest hands as we renew the many ancient and traditional customs of Christmas: the hanging of stockings, decorating the tree, exchanging of gifts, caroling, the holly and mistletoe, Christmas cards, and of course, setting out a snack for a red-suited visitor.

" . . . the shepherds found Mary and Joseph, and babe lying in the manger. And when they had seen, they understood what had been told them concerning this child."

Christmas brings out the "ham" in all parents . . . living testimony that "all the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players." How devious and cunning they are! Parental "innocence" and such things as letter writing to Santa "to make sure he knows what you want" only adds to the plot. Oscars to them all!

"Not all men will be saved by the Incarnation . . . for many men will reject the Child of Bethlehem." We pray O Lord, by the new birth of your only begotten Son, that the door of hate be closed and the door of love opened, granting on earth peace among men of good will.

And then, Christmas morn'. My, what big eyes Mr. S. C. prompts with the mechanical feast he has set under the tree. Dad's and Mom's soft touch, overworked at Christmas, has attempted to help Santa fill not all, but at least a few of the "I would like . . ." letter requests.

Once again the Christmas story fills our hearts. Our thoughts are with cherished friends and family. May the Christ Child reward you and yours His richest blessings at Christmas and daily throughout the coming year.

But gosh, we're still ahead of the "game" at three wins, one loss and a tie. Can you remember when you passed beyond the myth of Santa? Or does one really ever make this transition?

President's Message...

The newly reorganized Regis College Alumni Board of Directors at its first three meetings gave serious consideration to ways of improving communication between the administration and the alumni.

One method proposed, which we think will offer direct service to the alumni, is for the Board to act as a sounding board in bringing criticisms or constructive ideas to the administration for action. In past years, no organized body has assumed this obligation and consequently poor communications have existed between the two groups.

With this problem in mind, the Alumni Board is urging all alumni to bring their problems and suggestions to them as it will offer an immediate means of obtaining response from those charged for making decisions for the College.

In order to operate more efficiently in this service, the Alumni Board has changed its past policy of erratic meetings and has scheduled a monthly meeting to consider these and other problems. Already the college has given its wholehearted approval to this new idea and your cooperation in helping us bring about better alumni relations will be most helpful.

Quite obviously many of the decisions reached by the College will not always meet with our immediate approval. Often, failure to seek the facts continues to distort our thinking even though some very sound judgments were used in approval of a certain action.

The College is very conscious of its alumni relations and more particularly is very cognizant of the huge storehouse of knowledge available to it from alumni in the various business fields. Father Ryan and his staff welcome your ideas.

Regis, along with other colleges, is trying to meet constant demands for more and enlarged facilities. An excellent effort to fulfill these needs has been made by the College, but not without alumni help. A strong alumni encourages a strong college.

Let the Alumni Board help you keep a close relationship with your College by acting as your sounding board. We pledge to you our sincere efforts in representing you as a voice of the National Regis Alumni Organization for a greater Regis College.

"Adventures With Newman"

Dr. John Senior

*Associate Professor of English Literature
University of Wyoming*

Main Speaker, 1963 Fall Convocation

The complacent, pipe and slippers, unadventurous attitude of many Catholics today received a poignant, verbal shaking during a talk highlighting the College's Fall Convocation Oct. 9.

Dr. John Senior, a man obviously living the spiritually adventurous life he so superbly recommended, offered challenges while taking his Regis audience through "Adventures With Newman."

"The Catholic today," Dr. Senior said, "living as he must largely in a world which is worldly—secular, as we say—must be something at least of an adventurer.

"We speak of an adventurous life as daring, taking risks, the life put to the chance of whatever may come. Properly speaking, the life of the Christian is the most adventurous of all because he stakes everything on the promise of a single man who said that He will come."

But, "What have we ventured for Christ?"

"Too often, I think, the Catholic simply washes his hands of (intelligent and well-intentioned people who really don't know the moral law) in the interest of a pharisaical sanitation of his own soul," Dr. Senior emphasized.

"The Newman movement is a great Christian adventure. The secular college and the Catholic too," he said, "should be shaken by the encounter. Old habits will not suffice. Can you defend your faith? Are you able?"

Dr. Senior pointed out that "the majority of Catholic students for better or for worse, and I think it is for worse, are not amid the quiet groves of Jesuitical academe, but according to the old meaning of the word 'campus,' are on a 'field of battle.'"

Dr. Senior listed four ground rules which all sides must obey "before the tournament begins."

"First, we must fight always with respect for one another. Avoid the terrible tactics of the men of bad will. The second rule is truth: Truth is Christ's middle name—I am the way, the truth, the life, He said—and no Christian can teach or learn without a deep-sworn fidelity to the objectivity and sanctity of truth.

"Third, all men are propagandists, especially those who 'present all sides of the question.' The Christian must insist that while he is avowedly propagandizing his case, the liberal is doing likewise and that it is our respective cases that are being argued about.

"The fourth ground rule is this: The secular world needs articulate Catholics. We are not an evil to be tolerated but a positive force for intellectual and moral good. Reject our doctrines as they will, their education cannot be complete without the experience of our sharp edge."

"... for those of you at home—in the Catholic colleges, we shall bring you back (from Newman Club adventures) strange doctrines and you must replenish us by preserving and developing the great tradition of Catholic truth on which we must feed—you must provision us and supply recruits. If we all took to the Newman movement at the expense of the Catholic college, as some have suggested, it would be as if a whole nation took suddenly to sea, which would be madness.

"But one by one and in groups we should all of us try some like adventure," Dr. Senior said. "We must in a word, confront the world. And if we do, are we then able?"

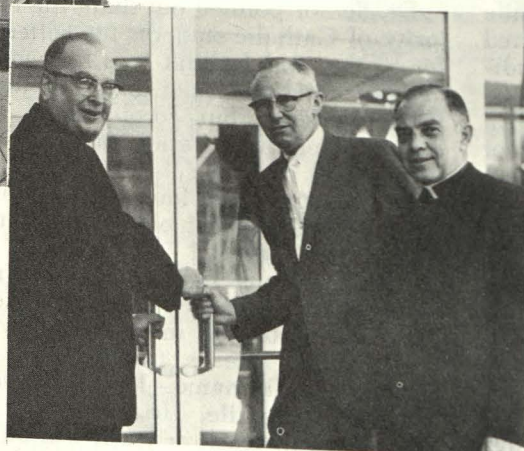

"Let us recall ourselves to adventure: which means taking chances; which means associating with people for whose behavior we indeed have a profound abhorrence; but let us remember that it is the behavior and not the person we abhor."

The Very Rev. Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President of Regis, was the Celebrant of the Solemn Mass of the Holy Spirit Oct. 8. The Rev. Christian L. Bonnet, S.J., was Deacon; the Rev. Thomas J. Casey, S.J., Subdeacon; the Rev. Richard F. Blocklage, S.J., Master of Ceremonies. The Regis College Choir, directed by T. Gordon Parks, sang the Mass.

Formal opening of the Regis Center was held Oct. 11. Above, Colorado Supreme Court Associate Justice Edward C. Day, '30, main speaker at the event, stands at the rostrum. Below, Father Ryan formally opens The Center, assisted by the Rev. Fred T. Daly, S.J., building coordinator at Regis, and F. W. Orr, general contractor for The Center construction. During his remarks Judge Day contrasted the Regis of his time and the Regis of today. Also speaking during the program were Father Ryan; James F. Dowd, III, President of the Regis College Student Senate Executive Board; Mr. Orr; and James M. Hunter, of Boulder, architect for The Center. The Invocation was given by the Rev. Matthew R. Lynch, S.J.

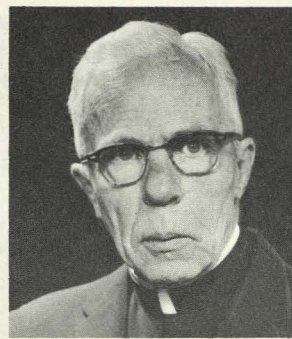

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. James P. Flanagan, W'18, Pastor of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Denver, delivered the Sermon at the Solemn Mass of the Holy Spirit. Msgr. Flanagan stressed devotion to the Holy Spirit and asked His blessing upon the commitment of Regis' faculty and students.

Four Jesuits Honored at Fall Convocation

Regis College took the occasion of its annual Fall Convocation to pay tribute to four longtime members of the Jesuit faculty Oct. 9.

Three Jesuits were presented 25-year Teaching Service Citations: the Rev. Henry P. Hecken, S.J.; the Rev. Bernard S. Karst, S.J.; and the Rev. Elmer J. Trame, S.J.

The Rev. William F. Houser, S.J., was honored on the Golden Jubilee observance of his entry into the Society of Jesus.

The Citations were presented by the Very Rev. Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President of the College.

Father Hecken, a native of Germany, joined the Regis faculty in 1931. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1897 at Blyenbeck, Holland and was ordained in 1912. Father Hecken taught at John Carroll University for 16 years prior to coming to Regis.

Father Karst is a former Principal of Regis High School and Dean of Students at the College. He entered the Jesuit order in 1916 and was ordained in 1929. Father Karst joined the Regis faculty in 1930.

Father Trame has been at Regis since 1936. His previous teaching assignments were at Creighton University, St. Louis University and John Carroll University. He entered the Jesuits in 1918 and was ordained in 1931.

Father Houser entered the Society of Jesus in Sept., 1913. Prior to coming to Regis in 1946, Father Houser served as Minister at Campion at Prairie du Chien, Wis., from 1927-29 and 1930-46. He was ordained in 1926.

The Fall Convocation also served as a fime for the Rev. Harry E. Hoewischer, S.J., Dean of the College, who presided at the event, to cite students for academic achievement, specifically those who attained the Dean's List.

The Rev. Paul Kennedy, S.J., Instructor in Education at the College, gave the invocation and benediction.

Faculty Convocation Topic

Moral, Religious, Spiritual Training of Students

For several years Presidents of Jesuit colleges and universities in the United States have expressed a deep and growing concern about the moral, religious and spiritual welfare of their students.

Regarded as a corporate responsibility, representatives of the 28 Jesuit institutions last year during a workshop in Los Angeles discussed the theory and general commitment in this regard.

Last August at another workshop, at Rockhurst College, in Kansas City, specifics of the moral, religious and spiritual training of students were discussed. Seven members of the Jesuit faculty at Regis participated in this workshop.

At the Faculty Convocation Oct. 9 five of the Regis delegation detailed, during a panel discussion moderated by the Very Rev. Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President of the College, proposals and positions presented in Kansas City. The panel members and their topics included: the Rev. Fred T. Daly, S.J., liturgical activities; the Rev. Edward L.

Maginnis, S.J., non-religious activities; the Rev. Harry R. Klocker, S.J., spiritual activities; the Rev. William T. Miller, S.J., Sodality.

These four areas cover a wide range of activities. Within each are numerous and important aspects that must be directed toward the "whole man" educational theory, with a serious responsibility to develop the moral.

Education of students toward the liturgical and sacramental life is centered in the Mass. An indoctrination of the students of their commitment to Christianity through the liturgy is essential.

Non-religious activities are a "must" in colleges today but though they are to be respected as a means of developing leadership, student rights and faculty-student relationships for example are to be placed in the proper perspective in furthering the being of a College.

There is, workshop participants agreed, a great need for spiritual programs to help not only expose the student to spiritually but also to break ignorant resistance to it. Recognizing that students cannot be directed to a life of prayer and that they need time for study and activities, it is however, possible to guide the students in a sacramental system and to teach them a reflectiveness and ordering of themselves.

Special groups of students, not seeking separate goals from the student body as a whole, are found in Sodality work. The barrier of the regard for Sodality as a "sissy" approach, must be broken down. Aided by formulation of concrete, realistic programs Sodality membership can be made attractive to all.

To expedite the moral, religious and spiritual program at Regis, Father Ryan has named Father Maginnis to direct liturgical and spiritual activities, the Rev. John P. Teeling, S.J., the Sodality and the Rev. Thomas F. Finucane, S.J., the retreat program.

A Tour of the "New" Regis Center

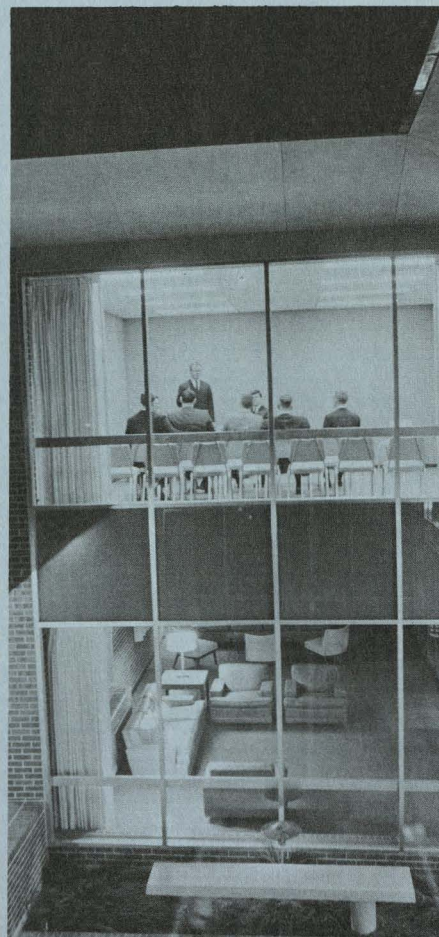

The newly-enlarged Regis Center has made its public debut and for the record, it's a beauty! Neither words nor pictures can adequately describe the pleasant, tasteful interior decor employed through The Center, in furniture, carpeting, draperies, paneling and painting.

Dining facilities of The Center were opened at the start of school in September and the remainder of the building was completed for the Formal Opening Oct. 11, an event of 1963 Founders Week. Dedication of The Center is planned next spring.

With the completion of The Center and the anticipated completion of the new residence hall, Regis will have made another noteworthy step in the development of its campus facilities.

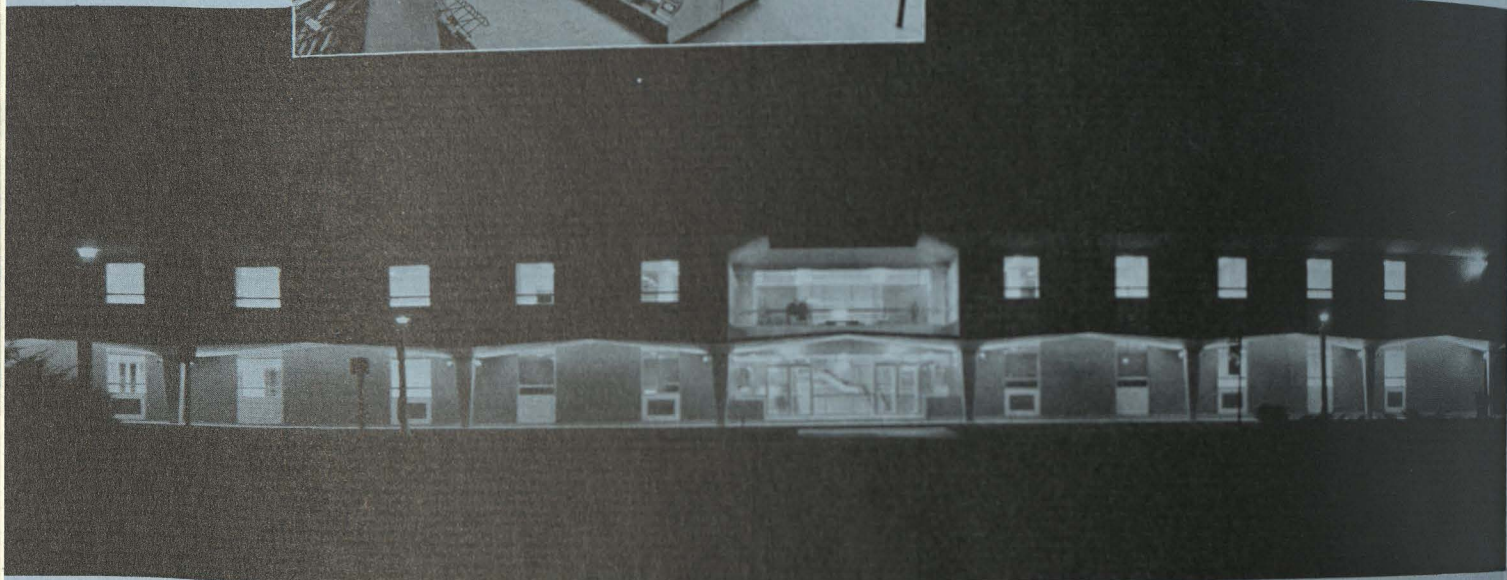

The Center-residence hall construction, a $1,350,000 project financed jointly by the College, with development funds, and a loan from the Housing and Home Finance Agency of the Federal government, raises to nearly $3,750,000 the amount expended over the past six years for new buildings, renovations and other physical improvements.

O Lord Jesus Christ, who commanded your Apostles to pray that peace might come to whatever house they entered, sanctify we implore You, this building meant for the benefit of our youth.

Pour into it the richness of your blessings and of your peace. Command your angels to guard it and to drive away from it all the power of the enemy.

Fill our teachers with the spirit of knowledge, wisdom and fear of You. Strengthen our students with heavenly grace, so that they may grasp with their minds, treasure in their hearts, and carry out in their deeds all the teachings that lead to salvation.

And may this blessing remain upon this place and upon those who make use of it, now and forever. Amen.

The year 1877 is the founding year of Regis College.

The Latin phrase, Nil Sine Numine, Nothing Without God, appears on the seal of Regis College and on the seal of the State of Colorado.

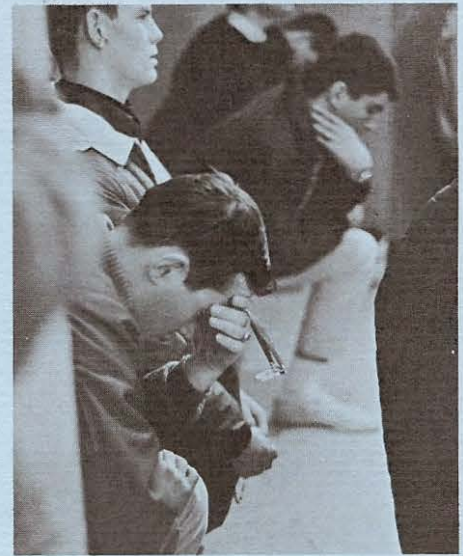

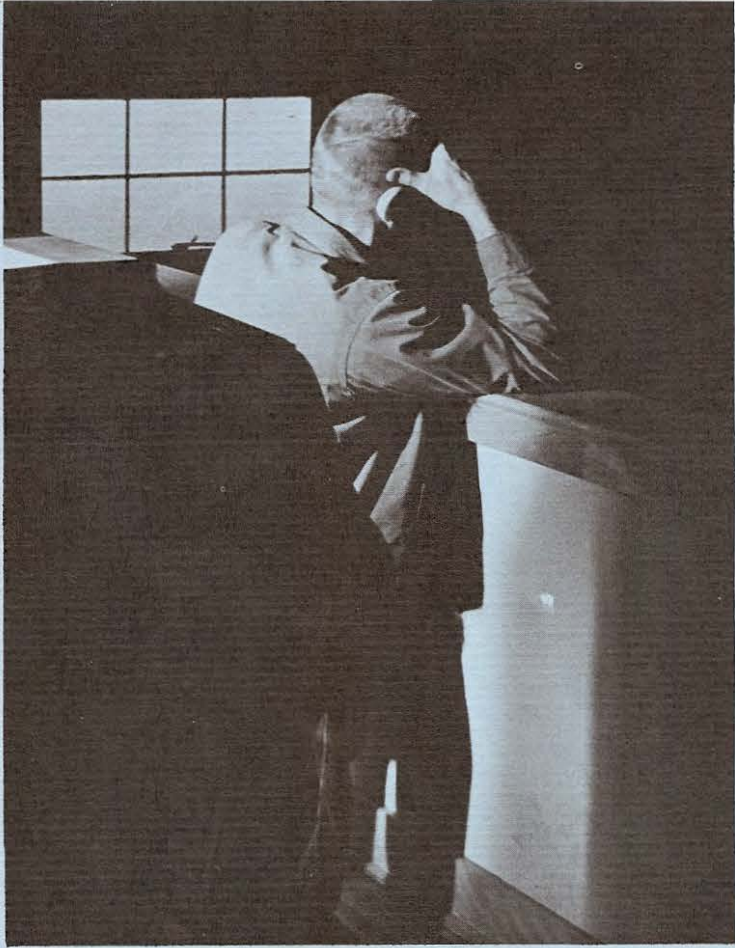

The white background for both Latin phrases represents a white stole, in honor of St. John Francis Regis, the Confessor.

REGIS COLLEGE

Their Thoughts, Their Prayers . . .

... were probably no different than those of most people around the world Friday, Nov. 22, 1963. But yet, there really was, somehow, in some way, something different on campus.

The closeness that is Regis, the invisible family bond as it were, of her students, faculty and employees, seemed to make it so, on the day of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy; and during the historic events that followed.

"This horrible deed is a test and a challenge of your faith," the Rev. Francis F. Bakewell, S.J., Regis High School Instructor, said in his sermon at a Requiem Mass celebrated Monday morning, Nov. 25 in the Regis Fieldhouse. The Mass was offered for the deceased President by students, faculty and employees of both Regis College and High School. "You may be emotionally 'shot', but you must be spiritually mature. In the ultimate analysis, God's plan prevails," Father Bakewell said. Celebrant of the Mass was the Rev. Harry E. Hoewischer, S.J., Dean of the College.

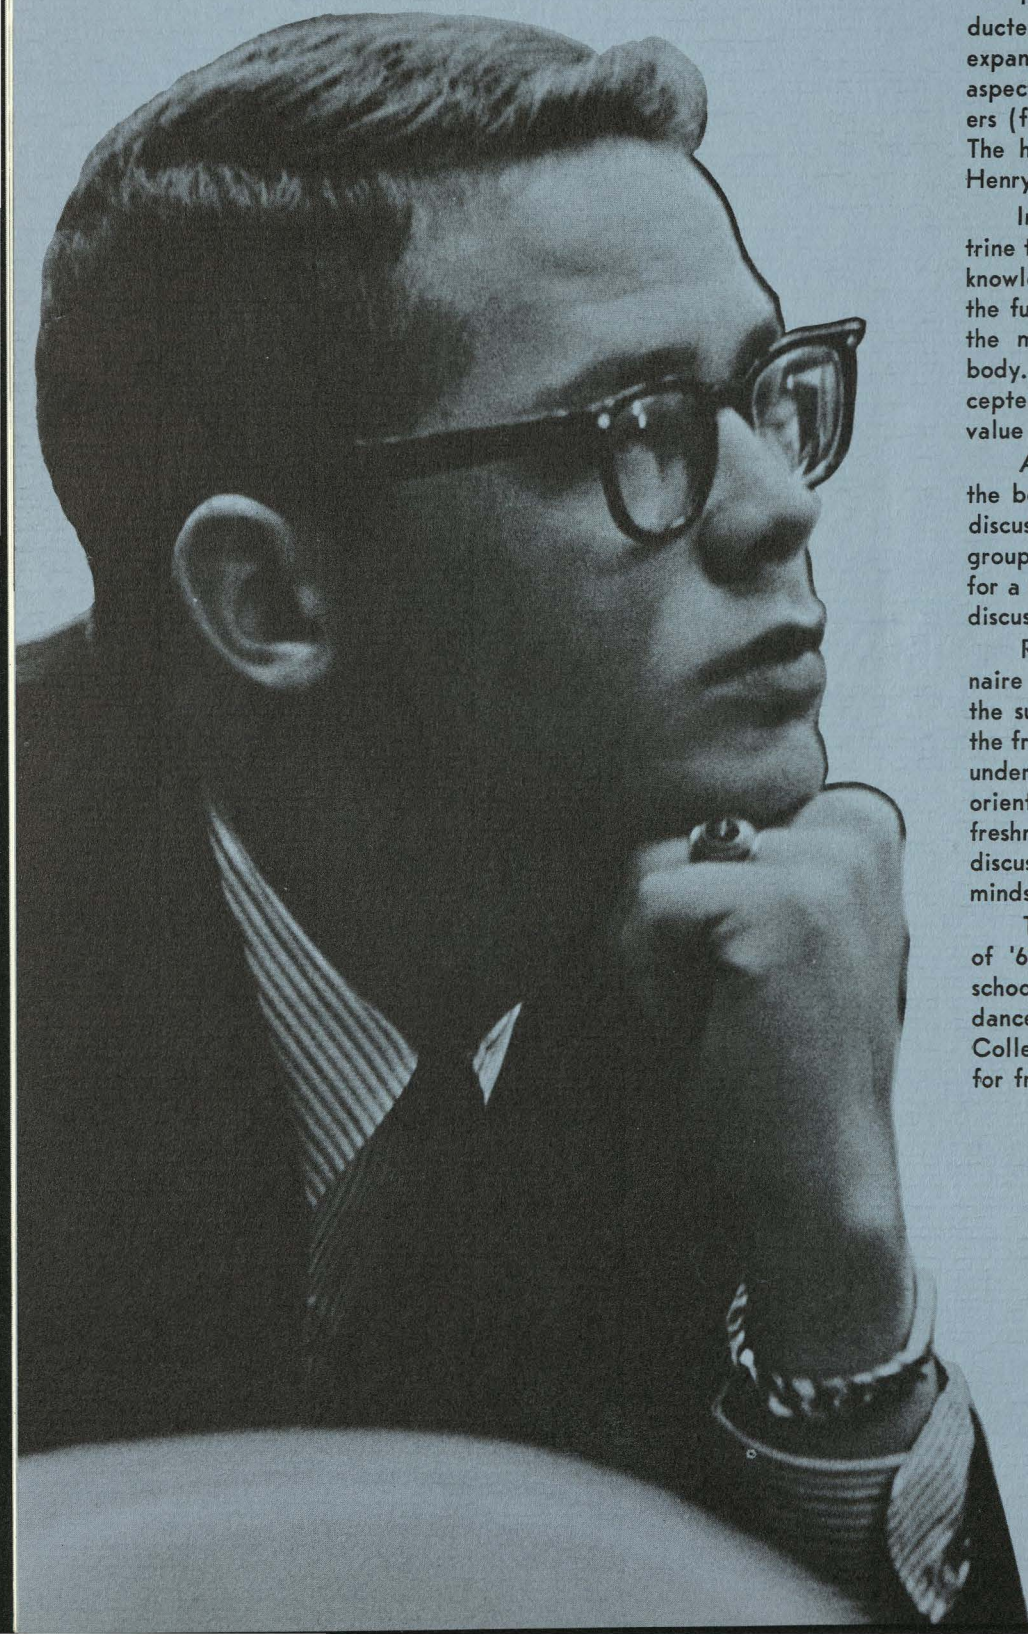

Within three hours of the tragic event on Friday, both College and High School groups, led by the Very Rev. Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President, had gathered in the College Chapel to recite the Rosary for the repose of the soul of Mr. Kennedy. A letter of condolence and an offering of Masses for the late President were sent to Mrs. Kennedy by the students of Regis.

"Never on any college campus have I seen anything have such a profound effect upon a student body" commented one Regis College professor as he and a group of sober-faced students talked in hushed tones in the quiet corridors of Loyola Hall in the first hour following the President's death.

As one looked out over the shadowed campus from Main Hall that Friday afternoon, those crossing the campus, singly or in groups, walked silently, their chins to their chests. They shared their thoughts, their prayers, only with God.

A CONFRONTATION: Newman and

For the past two years Regis College has conducted a week-long series of seminars as part of an expanded orientation program for freshmen. Various aspects of college life are discussed by panel leaders (faculty members and upperclassmen at Regis). The heart of the series has been based on John Henry Cardinal Newman's Idea of a University.

In his "Discourses" Newman opposed the doctrine that university instruction should diffuse useful knowledge, and argued, among other things, that the function of a university should be to discipline the mind very much as exercise disciplines the body. His educational definitions have been accepted widely by educators who have faith in the value of a training in the liberal arts.

All incoming freshmen are instructed to read the book prior to their arrival on campus. For the discussion the new collegians are separated into groups of 15-20 students, providing the opportunity for a more intimate and individual approach to the discussion topics.

Results of an orientation evaluation questionnaire submitted to the freshmen students speak for the success of the Regis program. The majority of the freshmen felt the group discussions helped them understand the function of a liberal education; that orientation functions acquainted them with other freshmen and upperclassmen; and that the group discussions on Newman's work did not change their minds as to the purpose of a college education.

There were other activities during the "Class of '67 Days" program which commenced before school opened and continued for about a month: dances; smokers; picnics; a hike to Loretto Heights College; and a convocation, reception and dinner for freshmen and their parents.

"Today a pupil, tomorrow a member of the great world."

Regis Freshmen

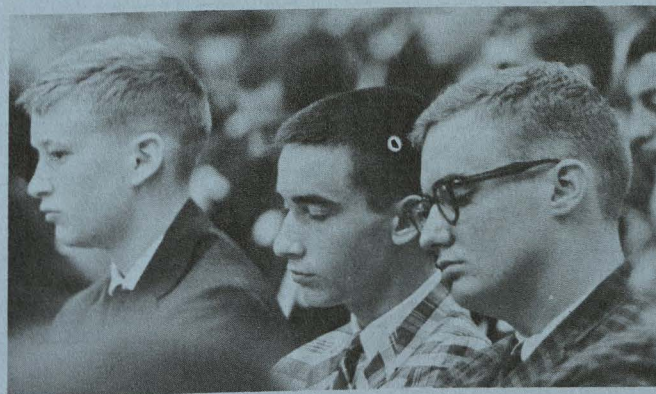

"A University should teach universal knowledge."

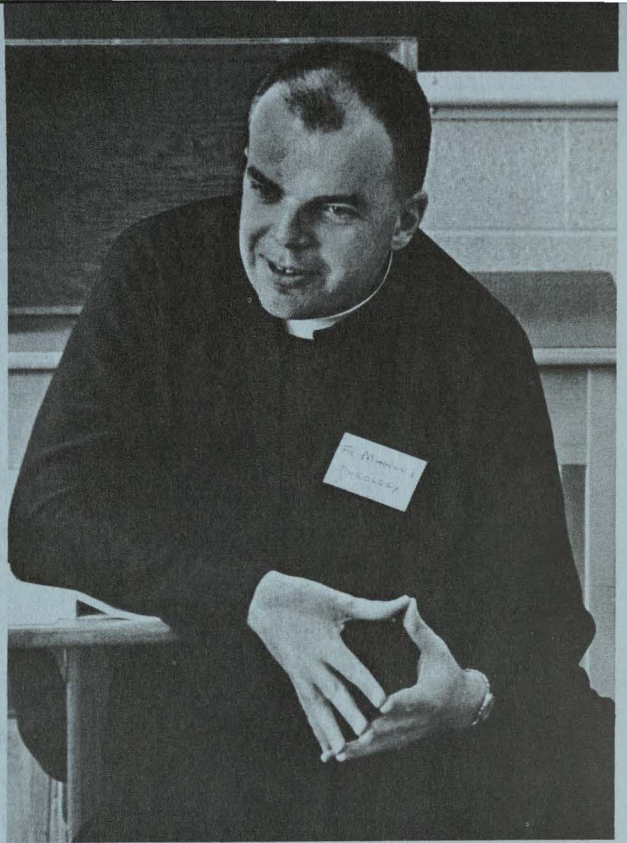

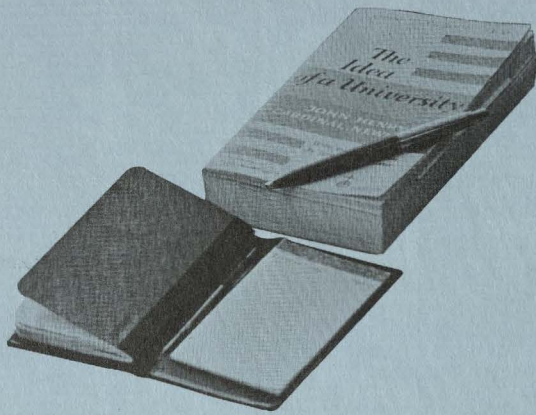

"He (man) looks back into himself, and he reads his own thoughts and notes them down; he looks out into the universe and tells over and celebrates elements and principles of which it is the product."

"... all Knowledge is a whole and the separate sciences parts of one ..."

"And the world, no longer dull, monotonous, unprofitable, and hopeless, is a various and complicated drama, with parts and an object, and an awful moral."

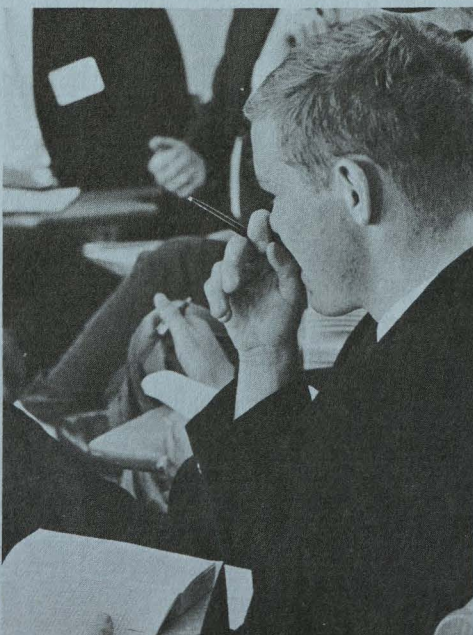

"I end then as I began: religious doctrine is knowledge."

" . . . cautious and practical thinkers, I say, will ask of me, what after all, is the gain of this Philosophy."

"I have said that all branches of knowledge are connected together because the subject-matter of knowledge is intimately united in itself, as being the acts and the work of the Creator."

"For why do we educate, except to prepare for the world?"

Father Houlihan Named New Dean

Changes on both the administrative and teaching levels were announced by the Very Rev. Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President, with the opening of the 1963-64 school year at Regis College.

Major administrative change was the appointment of the Rev. Robert F. Houlihan, S.J., as Dean of the College, effective January 27, 1964. Father Houlihan will succeed the Rev. Harry E. Hoewischer, S.J., who has served as Dean since 1960.

Father Hoewischer will remain on the Regis faculty, assuming fulltime duties in the Department of Psychology. The Department was established last summer and Father Hoewischer named acting chairman. Continuing in this same capacity Father Hoewischer will be responsible for planning and helping to execute an expanded program of student counselling as it relates to vocational patterns and the religious and spiritual life of the Regis College student body.

Father Houlihan is now at Regis, serving as Administrative Assistant to Father Hoewischer. The past four years

Fr. Houlihan

Father Houlihan had been serving as a Mathematics Instructor at St. Louis University and as Superior of Jesuit Scholastics at the Jesuit Scholasticate at Fusz Memorial. A native of Peoria, Ill., Father Houlihan was ordnained in 1957. He is an army veteran of World War II.

In a late-summer announcement, S. Lloyd Bowen was named Director of the Evening Division at the College, succeeding Ed Stokes. For the past five years Mr. Bowen has been on the faculty of St. Frances de Sales High School in Denver. He holds an A.B. degree from the University of Denver and an M.A. degree from Colorado State College.

Among Jesuit faculty appointments and changes were:

—The Rev. Hugo J. Gerleman, S.J., as an Assistant Professor of Theology. Father Gerleman, a former member of both the College and High School faculties, served as Instructor of Tertiaries at St. Joseph Hall, Jesuit Tertianship at Decatur, Ill., for the past 13 years.

—The Rev. Paul Kennedy, S.J., as an Instructor in Education. Father Kennedy taught at Bishop Kapaun High School in Wichita, Kan., the past four years. He previously taught at Creighton, Rockhurst and St. Louis.

—Rejoining the faculty after being on leaves of absence were the Rev. Francis J. Malecek, S.J., Assistant Professor of Philosophy, who studied in Rome the past year; and the Rev. John P. Teeling, S.J., Instructor in English, who was working on his Ph.D. degree at the University of North Carolina.

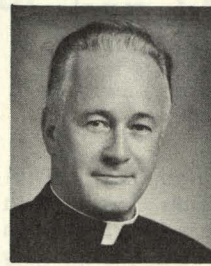

—The Rev. Edward L. Wintergalen, S.J., Associate Professor of Economics at the College, has been named a full-time Admissions Counselor with the office of the Director of Admissions and is spending considerable time visiting high schools throughout the country.

Among lay faculty appointments in the College were:

—Miss Veronica E. Casey, as an Assistant Professor of Education and Director of the Elementary Teacher Education Program. A veteran teacher in the Denver Public Schools, Miss Casey previously taught in the Regis College evening division. She has served as a visiting instructor at various colleges throughout the country. Miss Casey holds an A.B. degree from the University of Denver and an M.A. degree from the University of Southern California.

—Dr. Magnus V. Braunagel, as an Assistant Professor of Physics. He holds the B.S. in E.E. degree and B.S. in S.L.A. degree from the University of North Dakota, and the Ph.D. in E.E. from Purdue University. He has also done graduate work at the University of Notre Dame, Butler University and the University of Colorado. In addition Dr. Braunagel has done extensive research in space physics both for industry and the U.S. government over the past 12 years.

—William B. Hatlestad, as an Instructor in Psychology. Mr. Hatlestad received his M.A. degree from the University of Denver last June. He also holds an A.B. degree from MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill. He is a native of Granite Falls, Minn.

Fr. Kennedy

Fr. Gerleman

—James P. Coughlin, as an Instructor in Physics. Mr. Coughlin holds a B.S. degree from Fordham University and a M.A. degree from Columbia University. He taught physics and mathematics at Rockhurst College last year.

—Wilbur D. Bearce, as an Instructor in Business Administration. Mr. Bearce earned his A.B. degree at the University of Wyoming and an M.B.A. degree from the University of Denver. He was on the faculty at Wyoming and more recently at the University of Colorado before coming to Regis.

Hugh M. Edgar, Assistant Professor of Mathematics, and Robert J. Whitaker, Instructor in Physics, resigned their faculty posts at Regis during the summer. Mr. Edgar is now teaching at San Jose State, San Jose, Calif., and Mr. Whitaker has a graduate fellowship at the University of Oklahoma.

Rangers Open '63-'64 Basketball Card

A doubleheader affair Dec. 20 in the Denver Auditorium Arena, with Regis College meeting Washington State University and the University of Denver squaring off against Cincinnati, will feature the Rangers' December basketball card.

Coach Joe B. Hall's club opened its 1963-64 campaign Nov. 30 in a home affair with Panhandle A&M College and followed with home games with Westminster College and Oklahoma State University and a road game at Western State College at Gunnison, Colo.

Things were a bit gloomy as the Rangers wound up pre-season workouts. Hall expressed disappointment with the way the squad was looking but cited veterans Cozel Walker and Bill Whalen as being in good form.

Five Ranger Games To Be Telecast

The Regis College Rangers will be featured in five of 12 Rocky Mountain area basketball games to be telecast live by KCTO-TV, Channel 2, in Denver, during the 1963-64 season.

KCTO Sports Director Fred Leo announced the schedule Nov. 22. Regis will be in Denver-area living rooms for Ranger home games against Oklahoma State Dec. 13; the University of Denver Jan. 11; Colorado State College Feb. 15 and Colorado State University March 6. In addition the Regis-DU game at DU Jan. 29 is also on the TV schedule.

Pre-season workouts were devoted to finding a combination to fill gaps created by the graduation of Louis Stout, Ben Wesley, Dean Sullivan and James Jones. Another blow to the Ranger cause was the transfer of Dennis Crane, outstanding soph performer last year, to Xavier University.

Presence of the three lettermen: Walker, 6-5 sophomore center, last year's scoring and rebounding leader; 5-10 senior guard Bill Whalen, the club's defensive stalwart; and Jon Rapp, 6-4 junior forward, brightens the picture.

Coach Hall was using the three vets, plus junior guard Roger Harris, 6-3, in four starting slots. Sophomore forward Jay Coakley, 6-3, and 6-7 junior center Joe Miller were sharing "fifth man" duty.

Coach Hall and Sophomore Center Cozel Walker

Also in camp are: senior guards Tom Kojis, 5-10, and Allen Thomas, 6-5; junior center Jack Coyne, 6-5; sophomore guards Tony Reed, 5-10 and Jim Stark, 6-2; and sophomore forward Chuck Ducar, 6-5, leading scorer on last year's freshman club.

Hall's three lettermen are the only regulars from last year's team that won 15 and lost 9. Harris, Miller, and Kojis saw only limited duty in 1962-63 and Thomas sat out the season because of an injured knee. Coyne played on the Ranger frosh squad two years ago but skipped the sport last year.

Regis will be competing in the NCAA college division this year, switching from the university division where the Rangers have been ranked the past three years.

Improvements and additions to Regis College's outdoor athletic facilities on campus were completed this past summer.

In addition, six tennis courts, hard surfaced and fenced, have been constructed to the east of the Fieldhouse.

Alumni Fund Pledges at New High

Regis College's 1963 Alumni Fund drive has reached the greatest pledge total in the seven-year history of the Fund but yet is shy of the announced $50,000 goal for the year.

Joseph P. McConaty, W43, 1963 Fund Chairman, reported pledges toward the current goal at over $38,000 with approximately $30,000 of this amount already paid.

Mr. McConaty congratulated his Fund Board workers and all Regis alumni for helping to set the new record and reminded those who have yet to contribute that "we need the help of each alumnus to do our part in the overall development program of the College. These funds are being immediately translated into much-needed facilities at the College and I hope we, as alumni, will continue to meet our obligations."

Three Sports Added Under New Program

Three sports were added to Regis College's intercollegiate participation this fall as part of an expanded athletic program designed to place greater emphasis on providing more students the opportunity to participate in athletics.

Gordon Ross, Instructor in History at Regis College, has been named Swimming Coach. Metodej Anđel coaches the soccer team while handball is under the guidance of Regis sophomore Joe Siracusa. Anđel also coaches the College's ski team which competes on a club basis.

In another coaching addition this fall Peter J. McLaughlin, '61, was named Tennis Coach. He served as an assistant with the net squad last year and was an outstanding tennis player while a student at the College.

LETTERS...

Dear Father Casey:

Everything is going A-OK. We now have an addition to our team, a Lee Schender from St. Louis. All his classes are with 1st form which contains 41 students (the total student body is 117). Mike has Latin, English Language and Literature; Ted has Math, English Language and Religion, Lee has English Language, Literature and Spanish. As for myself I have History, English Literature and Scripture.

Our house is a small cinderblock structure about 50 yards from the sea. Our food consists of rice and beans, and a little meat (once in awhile, and which comes from Australia and boy you sure can taste the distance!). I guess this is what we "miss" the most—good 'ol home cook'n. I must add that our meals and laundry are done by a nice and very "wise" Creole woman named Agnes (Corozal population is chiefly Spanish-Indians, Maya Indians and Creoles).

Now that we have lost some of our "greenness" school is doing fine. The students are about the same here as up there except they maybe value the importance of an education a little more. Our day starts at 8 o'clock to 3:15 with a daily Mass at 11:30. We also have night study hall from 6 to 8 because of the lack of lights in many of the students' homes. Outside of school hours our time is mostly spent preparing for "tomorrow" classes as well as doing a little outside reading.

I guess we all well agree that this experience has been very valuable to us not only in principles of life, but more in our spiritual lives. We have a lot of time to think about this, and we have come to the conclusion (even tho we've been here only a short time) that we are getting more out of this job than we are putting into it. Sure there's plenty of sacrifices, but the pain (mostly in the wretched form of dysentery) is superseded by the feelings that here in Corozal we are needed, that our job is such that we are helping people help themselves, and indeed Father, the fruits are a hundred fold.

Well, must go, the "Rise of the Roman Republic" is calling. Say a prayer for us Father, and we'll remember you in ours.

Just us—
Mike, Ted, Lee and
Larry in Corozal

PLAUDITS

Dear Sir:

Congratulations on the award which you received from America magazine. This type of an award makes an individual proud of the fact that he is from Regis College. I'm sure that you deserve to feel more proud than I.

Robert V. S. Eldredge, '59
Albuquerque, New Mexico

Gentlemen:

I was pleased to receive the August 1963 issue of The Roundup Magazine. I was, of course, quite happy to read of Mrs. Dayton's bequest to the College and was also pleased to read of the honors being conferred on Father Ryan. The progress of the College in the past few years is adequate testimony that these honors are well deserved.

Over the past couple of years I have been quite impressed with the quality of the Magazine. Therefore, I was particularly pleased to read that the American College Public Relations Association conferred upon the College the 1963 Award for Distinguished Achievement in Public Relations Programs and also to see that America presented its 1963 award as the Outstanding Jesuit College or University Alumni Magazine to The Regis Roundup Magazine. I am somewhat familiar with the Alumni relations programs and periodicals in that a good friend of ours had been an Editor for the American Alumni Council and has worked in the past on what are known as the "Moonshooter Supplements." As a result of this awareness of what has been and is being done in the field, it has been most satisfying to note the improvement in the Regis publication in the past years. I think the 1963 Awards conferred upon the College and its Magazine are well deserved.

CAMPUS NOTES

• Enrollment for the first semester of 1963-64 totaled 1,010, according to Regis College Registrar Father John J. Gibbons, S.J., an increase of 17 over the 1962 Fall figure. Of this number 753 are fulltime day students. Students from 31 states and six foreign countries attend the College. • The annual "Hike to Loretto" and the Freshman Frolic Dance were windup events of "Class of '67 Days" for Regis freshmen.

The Time for Choices

REGIS COLLEGE Denver, Colorado

Course of studies? . . . Companions?
. . . Use of time?

These young men, in their first weeks at Regis College, are making some important choices and realizing, perhaps for the first time, that life is a succession of choices.

They will learn that the quality of their choices will determine the value and usefulness of their college experience. Later they will realize, as you have, how important the depth of their education is in attaining the greatest fulfillment in life.

Today's prospective collegian, in particular, is looking toward college and asking himself: Should I go to college? Where? What kind of a career should I prepare myself for in college?

All of you know some young man who is asking himself these questions. This presents a marvelous opportunity for you, and Regis College, to assist him with his decisions.

We at Regis are anxious to do our part. May we send you our booklet, The Time for Choices, which is designed to help young men, parents and counselors make a choice of college? In particular does it describe Regis College, a pioneer Western educational institution for men and Jesuit liberal arts center of the Rocky Mountain area. For your copy please write to Director of Admissions, Regis College, Denver, Colorado.

Now is, indeed, The Time for Choices.
